More unsolicited mail. This one's a doozy.

Hello Kris,

I wanted to take a moment to write you to tell you of my concern for the new Bill 10 law. I am a mother of three, two of which are attending the Meadows Baptist Academy that you are trying so hard to cut the funding too.

I was pleased to see that the government is doing an inquiry into our school to see if it is a safe and caring environment for the students. I can assure you it is. As parents it is our privilege to raise our children as we see fit - this is a privilege for all parents. We personally chose to raise our children to love and serve Christ. We feel that this is the most important decision our children will make in their lifetime - to accept Christ as saviour and live a life fully serving and loving him. The first and greatest commandment is to love God and love others. We teach our children that we are all sinners however we are to love the sinner but hate the sin and this accounts for all sin (stealing, murder, idolatry etc). We even have children in our school who are not "Christians" Gasp...but.....we teach them to love anyways. I think the government will find the kids at Meadows Baptist Academy are respectful and kind and are in a safe and caring environment. The parents who send their children there wish to have their children taught strong academics along with Christian values. We do live in a country where our freedoms to religion are and should be protected. I am really deeply saddened to see people saying such awful things about our Christian faith as well as our small Christian school. Which leads me to my next point. The Christian faith and our school has been hammered on brutally in the media however the hypocrisy is overflowing. The LGBTQ community as well as its supporters have done nothing to show any compassion or love for those who are not of likeminded ideology. Its sad really! The LGTBQ and supporters are allowed to say what they want, no holds barred, and speak their minds openly without repercussion. However when we take a "strong stance" we get decimated. It can be hard at times to see the equality in this all that you are trying so hard to fight for when you yourselves are being unequal in all your dealings.

Another point is we are tax payers too. And not only that I still have to pay tuition to make up the difference that the government does not provide my school with. It is indeed cheaper for the government to have children in a private school as oppose to a public school. I truly believe the government needs to go back to the basics of academics - math, science and LA. The other subjects such a sexual orientation, gender identity, morals, values, etc should be taught by the parents at home as they see fit. The government is stepping way over their boundaries.

The last thing I wanted to mention was a portion of scripture that talks about what our society will be like in the end days.

2 Timothy 3:2

But know this, that in the last days perilous times will come: For men will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, unloving, unforgiving, slanderers, without self-control, brutal, despisers of good, traitors, headstrong, haughty, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, having a form of godliness but denying its power.

Lloyd Tapper I grew up in her world of perceived moral superiority mix with a healthy dose of ignorance and hate.

Entertaining these comments is nothing more than a distraction and an attempt to find common sense where there isn't any. Kris, continue to do what you do. Focus on the kids and keep moving forward.

Kristopher Wells I never respond. I'd rather use my time and energy on something productive.

Janice Foster Love the sinner, hate the sin - I absolutely deplore that statement - how can you call yourself a Christian if you have hate in your heart. This sure does bring out all the haters. Makes me think of the Trump campaign in the U.S. where his racist, bigoted remarks brings out all the haters there. Keep up your work, Kris.

Janice Foster Another thought - she complains about having to pay 30% of the tuition - how about she pays 100%.

Peggy Welter Laurie It must be nice to get a few letters that are at least civil. I will say that the writer does very civilly put her ideas into words. I think she said it best when she said the word privilege a number of times. She naturally does not use it in the w... See More

Peni Christopher Amazing how one can refer so often to love, yet be so hate-filled.

Marty Chan When she writes "strong stance," I get a Lake of Fire kind of vibe, but maybe that's just me.
